

KENTUCKY STATE POLICE

An Agency on the Move

The roots of the Kentucky State Police can be found in its predecessor, the Kentucky Highway Patrol that was created in 1936. The Kentucky Highway Patrol was entrusted with the task of regulating and enforcing all traffic laws within the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Forty uniformed troopers were hired in that initial year. As the years progressed so did the Kentucky Highway Patrol.

On July 1, 1948, the Kentucky Highway Patrol was transformed into the Kentucky State Police. The agency was granted full police powers enabling it to enforce all criminal and traffic offenses within all 120 counties of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

While the uniformed Kentucky State Trooper on patrol is the core of our agency, it has grown and become more diversified and specialized in various areas. The Drug Enforcement/Special Investigations Section investigates drug syndicates, white collar, and organized crime. The Special Response Team handles potentially violent high-risk situations. The Executive Security Detail provides protection for the governor, lieutenant governor, and their families. The Kentucky State Police also has Post Level Detectives, Street Level Narcotics Detectives, K-9 Units, Accident Reconstructionists, Public Affairs Officers, D.A.R.E. Officers, and Marijuana Eradication Strike Forces.

The Kentucky State Police is an elite agency. We provide a rewarding career for the most exceptional and highly motivated candidates. For this reason, our paramilitary academy is 22 weeks of intense academic, vocational and physical training. Kentucky State Troopers are prepared to enforce, investigate, apprehend and prosecute all criminal and traffic offenses to the best of their ability.

If you desire a career with one of the most elite state police agencies in the United States, you may be the candidate we are looking for. Stay Motivated!
